2018 SARRAH National Conference

Services for Australian Rural and Remote Allied Health (SARRAH)

12-14 September 2018 | Darwin Convention Centre, DARWIN

Changing Landscapes, Changing Lives

The modern healthcare landscape is undergoing massive and rapid changes that impact on both health professionals and the people who use the health system. Changes are driven by people's needs, technological development, research outcomes, workforce availability, political stances, policy frameworks and fiscal priorities. At the same time, health services in rural and remote areas are situated in ancient geographical landscapes that are ever changing as a result of human influence and natural events. The delivery of services by allied health professionals is underpinned by the drive to improve quality of life and quality of services.

APPLY FOR A $2,000
SPONSORSHIP
Includes registration, accommodation and travel

Rural Health West is offering five sponsorships of $2,000 for full-time allied health students undertaking university studies in Western Australia to attend the 2018 SARRAH National Conference.

Successful applicants will receive $2,000 towards program-only registration, accommodation and travel costs. To apply for sponsorship, students will need to respond (in 500 words or less) to the following:

Why do you wish to attend and what benefits will you gain from attending?

You will also need to complete all required information on the Sponsorship Application Form overleaf.

Sponsorship applications close Wednesday 27 June 2018 and are to be returned to Rural Health West via:

Post Future Workforce Project Officer
Rural Health West
